

Drill Pipes

Friction drill pipes for reverse circulation are used in applications where the priority is to recover all debris produced during drilling or when it is necessary to prevent the drilling fluid used to disperse into the subsoil. This type of rod, therefore, has two separate channels for the circulation of drilling fluid. ColliDrill produces rods for reverse circulation with diameters between 90 and 220 mm.

Category: Colli Drill.